March 6, 2019	0830 – 1630 Hrs	8	Effingham Police Department 110 South 3rd Street, Effingham
Course Description
This grammar-editing class is aligned with police report-writing needs. The course is designed to enhance the skills of those in supervisory positions—FTOs, first-line supervisors, and command personnel—by enabling them to more effectively review reports prepared by subordinate personnel. Course content targets report responsibility for establishing consistent and chronological organization, developing strong coherent paragraphs with clear transitions, and writing clear sentence structure. In addition, it reviews usage impacted by number, tense, voice, and agreement with the eight parts of speech and the eight marks of punctuation. The instructor will clarify how a lack of pronoun to noun clarity, inconsistent tense, and passive voice verbs can break the chain of custody and cause quotations and evidence to be suppressed. It also covers how to punctuate quotations. Throughout the class students will apply what is taught.
